Glossary of Terms

Term	Definition
Scope of Practice	It is range of roles, functions, responsibilities, and activities for which a nurse is educated for, competent in, accountable for and authorized to perform. It defines the accountability and limits or boundaries of professional practice. It is not limited to specific tasks, functions or responsibilities but includes direct care giving and evaluation of its impact, advocating for patients and for health, supervising and delegating to others, leading, managing, innovating, teaching, undertaking research and developing health policy for health care systems (ICN, 2010).
Nursing Profession	Nursing encompasses autonomous and collaborative care of individuals of all ages, families, groups and communities, sick or well and in all settings. Nursing includes the promotion of health, prevention of illness, and the care of ill, disabled and dying people. Advocacy, promotion of a safe environment, research, participation in shaping health policy and in patient and health systems management, and education are also key nursing roles. (ICN, 2002)

Autonomous Nursing Practice	Freedom to practice independently and to exercise professional judgment in practice activities within accepted boundaries for the profession. The four attributes of clinical autonomy in nursing practice includes: practicing within a professional context (practice that is self-regulating through a professional regulatory body), capacity to exercise clinical judgment based on a nurse's knowledge and skills to function within the scope of practice, authority to make patient care decisions regarding clinical nursing care and having a voice in terms of clinical care decision making, and context of interdisciplinary collaboration (Fitzpatrick & McCarthy, 2016).
Advocate	Actively supporting a right and good cause; supporting others in speaking for themselves or speaking on behalf of others who cannot speak for themselves. (ICN, 2021).
Evidence-Informed Practice	A process for making informed clinical decisions. Research evidence is integrated with clinical experience, patient values, preferences and circumstances (ICN, 2021).
Therapeutic Relationship	A therapeutic nurse-patient relationship is defined as a helping relationship that's based on mutual trust and respect, the nurturing of faith and hope, being sensitive to self and others, and assisting with the gratification of patient's physical, emotional, and spiritual needs through professional knowledge and skill (Pullen & Mathias (2010).
Culturally Competent Care	Nurses should demonstrate cultural competence by: <ul style="list-style-type: none">• Developing an awareness of one's own culture without letting it have an undue influence on those from other backgrounds.

- Demonstrating knowledge and understanding of different cultures.
- Accepting that there may be differences between the cultural beliefs and values of the health care provider and the client.
- Accepting and respecting cultural differences.
- Adapting care to be congruent with the client's culture and expectations.
- Providing culturally appropriate care so as to deliver the best possible client outcomes.

(ICN, 2013)

Introduction

The practice of Nursing is grounded in standards and ethical values and supported by a system of professional regulation. The nurses' roles and functions are constantly evolving and changing to meet national health needs and strategic directions as well as incorporating service needs such as workforce demands, skill mix mandates and budgeting. Therefore, the National Committee for Nursing and Midwifery (NCNM) has developed the UAE Scope of Practice – Registered Nurse in collaboration with national stakeholders and regional and international nursing experts. The development of this document has considered the Emirati context and healthcare system as well as aligning the competency standards with international best practices. The words of (patient) and (client) are used interchangeably in this document and refer to the individuals receiving nursing care in different care settings.

Purpose of the UAE Scope of Practice – Registered Nurse

The UAE Scope of Practice – Registered Nurse is developed as a regulatory document for nurses, health care facilities, nursing educational institutions, other health care professionals and stakeholders in the UAE. It is meant to assist in decision making processes and management of scope of practice issues relevant to workforce planning within nursing for Registered Nurses. It provides support with decision making around enabling and expanding scope of practice and provides some basic principles for consideration. It highlights the need for scope of practice decision making to be embedded in a sound clinical governance and risk management, professional and regulatory framework to enable professional nurses to work within the full and potential scope of practice that aligns with UAE laws and regulations. It enables comprehensive assessment of client needs, available resources, work settings, and many other factors in complex and rapidly changing situations. Also, it provides a framework for registered nurses entailing their roles and responsibilities and the competency standards that determine the outcomes of their clinical practice. The scope of practice also outlines critical indicators to help registered nurses make practice decisions thus assume responsibility and accountability for their own practice and enhance the quality of care and the advancement of nursing profession (ICN, 2010).

UAE Scope of Practice for Registered Nurse

Registered Nurse (RN)

Registered Nurse is a person who completed an accredited academic educational program at minimum of Bachelor level and deemed competent to perform autonomous nursing practice, provide collaborative care in collaboration with treating physician and multidisciplinary team, assume responsibility and accountability for such practice, and is registered and licensed with the title of (Registered Nurse) by National Health Regulatory Bodies in United Arab Emirates in accordance with the national professional qualification requirements (PQR).

Domains, Competency Standards and Performance Criteria for Registered Nurse
